Please join JJN and MFAN for a discussion with Executive Director Keren Nazarath on SAATH's work in India and their approach to development.

About SAATH:

SAATH is a non-governmental organization registered as a public charitable trust in Gujarat, India. In Gujarati the word SAATH means, "Together, Co-operation, a Collective or Support.' SAATH's one-stop, integrated services reach over 100,000 slum dwellers in Ahmedabad, and many more in Gujarat and Rajasthan states of India. Since 1989, SAATH has facilitated participatory processes that improve the quality of life for the urban and rural poor.

SAATH pioneered the Integrated Community Development Programme in 1989, an approach that seeks to turn slums into vibrant neighbourhoods. SAATH caters to the multiple needs of the poor at once by providing them with one-stop centres, through which slum residents have access to services such as health, education, employment, micro finance and affordable housing.

We invest in human capacity of persons to manage SAATH programmes in their communities. Communities co-invest with SAATH and donors by for the programmes, deciding and implementing them. SAATH engages institutions, corporates and individuals throughout the world as partners and supporters of integrated development in India.
